You are released through courtesy, and failure to report as directed makes you liable to arrest, and is signed by the Superintendent of Police. After the organization work was under way, the Secretary of the Civic Division began the publication of a monthly bulletin to traffic officers, in which the officers were kept informed on everything that was happening in the traffic field, and containing a report of the number of arrests and the work of the individuals and of squads. In this bulletin also each squad was assigned two definite dates on which it was to work during the month. The administration of the special police officers was in direct charge of the Police Department, but an executive committee composed of the eight squad leaders of the special traffic officers, the lieutenant in charge of this division of the Police...
